VEGETATIVE GROWTH (PHOTOPERIOD)

MARY, MARY, QUITE CONTRARY; HOW DOES YOUR GARDEN GROW?

YOU GROW, GIRL!

- When your plants are about 3-4 weeks old, transplant seedlings into bigger pots with well fertilized soil - we recommend beginning with FoxFarm Happy Frog or Roots Organics soil and, eventually, up-potting into FoxFarm Ocean Forest soil. Sprinkle Mycorrhizae, such as Great White or Mykos, directly on roots during transplant.
- Water thoroughly and only water when the soil is dry. Make sure to water until you see run-off -- soil that is dried out too much becomes hydrophobic.
- You may start to feed your plants a vegetative fertilizer according to the instructions listed on the bottle.
- Veg your plants until desired height is reached. Leave room for plants to double in size during flowering stage.

MIKE'S PRO-TIP

In the vegetative stage, if you're running HID lights (MH, HPS, CMH), you'll want to run slightly lower temps (between 72 and 78 degrees Fahrenheit) due to these lights having more IR and UV. If you're running LED lights, you'll want to run slightly higher temps (between 78 and 82 degrees Fahrenheit) due to less IR. Humidity levels for any kind of light will stay between 60-70% for vegetative growth.

- Please note: CO2 supplementation requires higher temps and heavier feeding schedules.

HIGH GOALS: VEGETATIVE PHASE

- If your plants are outgrowing pots, transplant them into larger pots before the bloom stage.
- In a 5x5 grow area, we recommend growing 4 plants in 10 gallon containers or larger.
- The goal is to have stems from wall to wall for a maximum yield.
- Once your tent is 3/4 full, it is time to switch your light cycle for flowering -- 12 hours on and 12 hours off to begin Day One of flowering.
